REASONS FOR ALLOWANCE

1. The following is an examiner's statement of reasons for allowance: None of the prior art in record taken alone or in combination discloses a method of communication in a data processing system, said method comprising: at a requestor, buffering a request in an entry of a request queue; the requestor transmitting the request to a recipient for servicing; transmitting a status signal from the recipient to the requestor to signal the requestor to refrain from transmitting requests to the recipient; and the requestor removing the request from the entry of the request queue without receipt of any indication that the request has been serviced, wherein removing the request comprises; if said status signal is not received during an interval of at least a latency of said status signal, removing the transmitted request from the entry of the request queue after expiration of said interval.

In addition, none of the prior art in record taken alone or in combination discloses a data processing system comprising a recipient; a requestor, including a request queue having at least one entry storing a request; a request controller that transmits the request to the recipient for servicing and removes the request from the entry of the request queue without receipt of any indication that the request has been serviced; and a response receiver to which said recipient transmits request responses, wherein the response receiver includes priority logic that outputs an imprecise priority signal indicating at least one preferred type of request response; and the recipient includes an arbiter that selects request responses for transmission to the response receiver at least partially in response to the priority signal.

Art Unit: 2152

Any comments considered necessary by applicant must be submitted no later than the payment of the issue fee and, to avoid processing delays, should preferably accompany the issue fee. Such submissions should be clearly labeled "Comments on Statement of Reasons for Allowance."
